Introduction

Comprising 28 countries with a combined population of almost 500 million people, the European Union generates about one third of the world’s economic output. The EU today constitutes a highly complex supra-governmental organization, with its own institutions and a complex policy-making system. Facing tremendous challenges brought about by the integration of a large number of new members, capitalizing on opportunities stemming from economic integration, and being an emerging force in international politics, the European Union is a uniquely important topic for students of all majors.

Course Description

This course provides an overview of the history, evolution, and current challenges facing the European Union, with an emphasis on social and cultural issues. It focuses on the economic and political rationale for closer integration, on the difficulties of reconciling sharply different cultural, legal, and political traditions, on the stresses caused by immigration and enlargement, and on the recent challenges presented by the global economic and financial crisis.

Course Objectives

Upon the completion of this course, students will be able to:
1. Understand the lessons of European history leading to the creation of the European Union following the fall of Nazi Germany.
2. Be familiar with the changing political and economic factors dominating the public policy environment at each of the various stages of EU enlargement since 1956.
3. Identify the main characteristics of each of the unofficial “blocs” within the EU: Northern countries, Southern countries, Eastern countries, “Core Countries”, Peripheral Countries”, Non-Euro adopting countries, etc.
4. Understand the structure and role of the important political and governance institutions of the EU, as well as the functions of several other related supervisory and advisory bodies.
5. Reflect on the current challenges facing the EU: further physical and economic enlargement, immigration from the Middle East and Africa, foreign policy challenges, youth unemployment, economic stagnation, Brexit, and a fragile banking system.
6. Develop an understanding of the importance of the Euro and the role of the European Central Bank in coordinating economic policy in the EU.
7. Be familiar with the impact of the historical rivalries and alliances among France, Germany and Britain and others sovereign states in determining the direction and pace of the European integration process
8. Understand the spectrum of prevailing attitudes towards the EU in Spain, France, Switzerland, Italy, and Greece

Course Requirements

The course requires active student participation. Students are expected to read the assigned textbook chapters and articles before every class. Punctual attendance is required. There will be oral student presentations, a midterm exam, a final exam, and a team project. Each student is required to participate in a minimum of three professional visits and three cultural visits.

Teaching Procedures and Methodology

Teaching methods used in this course include lectures, discussions, team assignments, and professional visits. Learning in this course requires the student’s constructive participation and active involvement in both class discussions and small group discussions. Small group discussions in particular are a key mechanism for facilitating learning from other team members. Thus, it is essential to attend all group activities inside and outside classes. The professional visits will expose the participants to different aspects of the class and will highlight the practical relevance of the concepts learned. The visits will be accompanied by individual or group assignments. Cultural visits enhance the students’ understanding of the history and culture of each country.

Required Textbook

Understanding the European Union
by John McCormick
Palgrave, 7th Ed., 2017

Additional Readings

Additional articles from a number of sources covering current European issues will be distributed by the instructor throughout the course.

Team Project

Teams will consist of 3-4 students and will be formed early on in the term. The project report should be between 12 and 14 pages long (Font: Arial, 12; Line Spacing: 1.5).

Students will work in designated teams to analyze different aspects of the expansion of the EU along any one of several critical dimensions, such as:

(a) Geographic expansion: Geographically, the EU has grown from 6 original “Western” members in the 1950's to 28 members today, along with additional “candidate” countries, and reaching to several Russian border lands.

(b) Economic expansion: Economically, the EU has expanded from its industrial and tariff control roots founded upon the consolidation of the coal and steel industries, moved on to bigger goals of a "single market" and free movement of goods, services, capital and people, and now includes a monetary policy union for 18 of its members, plus a few non-member countries using the Euro currency.

(c) Political expansion: Politically, the EU has shifted over time away from purely inter-governmental negotiations, and has begun to take on various attributes of a supra-national (or even federal) state, but with growing controversy over the exact Spillover and Subsidiarity boundaries of such political centralization.

Controversy: As the EU has expanded, there has also been a growing controversy regarding how much expansion is appropriate. Analysis: To analyze the conundrum of expansion, each team of students should propose a specific “thesis” concerning the causes & consequences of prior or anticipated “expansion moves” within the EU. Then in conjunction with the professor, the team will develop a report which considers the success (or lack of success) of EU policy in the context of a specific geographic or economic or political or social policy questions. Process: Teams will meet regularly with the professor to formulate a topic, select data and reference sources, prepare a draft, submit a final report, and present an oral presentation to the class at the end of the course.
